Supplementary Amendments

A number of amendments to the report are necessary, mostly minor due to proof checking.

More substantive amendments are listed in the attached sheets.

Please retain original document and refer to amended pages where necessary.

The changes are as follows:

- Amended design of front page and altered title
- Inclusion of omitted tolerated site at Perry Hill, Nazeing
- Consequential correction to tables showing phasing
- Amend the end date of consultation to the 20th of January 2009, to meet Cabinet Office guidelines
- Changed colour scheme as requested
- Note on Direction on front cover
- Page 17 and question 8 - Large urban sites - following discussion with members rewritten to refer to future potential sites.
- Pages 19 and 20 - parts reworded to be clearer and more correctly reflect status of ongoing joint work on Harlow extensions.
- Pages 23 33 48- correction of parishes of certain sites
- Page 27 Richards Farm and Tomary labels transposed – corrected boundary of Tomary with areas as extended by recent permission
- Page 62 - corrected description for site 19a
- Page 70 - new question to reflect site delivery options

- Add new informative box

Will my house price go down/will crime go up?

- The only published research on this matter comes from Scotland (Planning Exchange and Joseph Rowntree Foundation).
- It suggests that claimed impact on house prices could not be established; this is in any event not a planning matter.
- Also initial fears about crime and 'trouble' were not born out when planned sites were established.
